

China Security & Surveillance Technology Inc. (CSST) is a new distribution partner for Mobotix AG

Shenzhen/Kaiserslautern, July 2008 --- The Chinese company China Security & Surveillance Technology Inc. (CSST) and the German company Mobotix AG from Kaiserslautern, a technology leader for high-resolution network cameras, have arranged a distribution partnership. The agreement signed in April 2008 grants CSST distribution rights for Mobotix products in the entire People's Republic of China.

The partnership with the Chinese market-leading specialists for the engineering, setup and maintenance of video surveillance systems promises Mobotix an additional share of the increasingly important Chinese market. The founder and CEO of CSST, Guoshen Tu, expressed as being very pleased about the future cooperation: "We look forward to developing a strong relationship with Mobotix moving forward. This agreement further demonstrates that international brands continue to recognize CSST's market position in China and its ability to provide a one-stop-shop solution to its clients.

This agreement will allow CSST's distribution and system integration operating segments to offer a more comprehensive solution to its growing customer base. Working closely with CSST will enable Mobotix to work with a strong China-based partner to distribute their products in a rapidly growing market. We are pleased to cooperate with a well established technology company and look forward to increased cooperation with international companies in the future."

Thanks to the partnership with Mobotix, CSST can offer a solution perfectly suited to the growing Chinese need for high-performance, high-resolution surveillance systems that are particularly in high demand with public institutions and private sector companies. This year, the Kaiserslautern-based Mobotix AG distinguished itself by winning the European CCTV and Video Surveillance Product Innovation Award from Frost & Sullivan for excellence in product innovation.

MOBOTIX AG is listed at the Frankfurt Stock Exchange under the international security identification number DE0005218309 (MBQ).

About China Security & Surveillance Technology, Inc.

Headquartered in Shenzhen/China, China Security & Surveillance Technology Inc. (CSST) is the market-leading specialist for engineering, installation and maintenance of video surveillance systems at the Chinese market. This stock corporation, quoted on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE ticker: CSR), operates multiple branch offices in China and an own R&D department that works closely with the University of Peking. Extensive sales activities and a closely-knit service network have earned CSST a widely varied customer base (for more information on CSST, see www.csst.com).